59. There are several ways in which to write medical history. ____ Then there is the social approach to the history of medicine which concentrates on how, when, by whom and with what effect, the ill were treated in times gone by. Yet, another approach is to deal with the influence of disease upon the course of human affairs.

- A) It is only in the past 50 years that doctors have appreciated how dangerous experience can be as a guide to action.
- B) A major area with which medical history is concerned is pathology.
- C) But all the strands of medical history could not possibly be woven into a coherent and comprehensive whole.
- D) Most accounts of medical developments lack coherence and are often out-dated.
- E) One method, and this is the one preferred by doctors, is to trace progress from complete medical ignorance to a high level of medical competence.

60. The firm Carter was founded by Louis François Carter in 1847 in Paris, but until the end of the century, it remained quite a small concern. ____ Within ten years there were also branches in London and New York, and each of the branches was run by a grandson of the founder.

- A) No one guessed then how these Carter creations would soon capture the popular imagination.
- B) A move to new and more spacious premises in 1899 opened the way to expansion.
- C) Many of Carter's craftsmen drew on original antique artifacts for their inspiration.
- D) For many years the designs were to remain largely Renaissance-inspired.

71. Your sister has announced that she is going to be married at the end of the year. You've heard plenty about the young man, and all to his credit. So you are quite happy about the marriage; but still you do want to meet him first. You say:

- A) This is all rather sudden, isn't it? What does he do for a long living?
- B) Well, this is a surprise. Tell me all about him.
- C) I hope you're not acting impulsively! Is there something you're trying to hide as we still haven't met him.
- D) I'm so glad I know you've made an excellent choice and you certainly deserve to be happy.
- E) Well, congratulations and all my best wishes. But I do hope you'll bring him round to meet us before the wedding.

72. For a while now a friend has been having trouble with a group of workmen in his factory, and matters are now coming to a head. You feel he is behaving in too harsh a manner and want to point this out to him in a tactful way so as not to offend him. You say:

- A) My advice to you is to make no concessions whatsoever and let those leave who want to leave.
- B) Your trouble is you're too hard on them. I'm surprised you've got any workmen left.
- C) I can't understand the problem. Please explain it again to me.
- D) There's always trouble in the workforce everywhere. Just ignore it.
- E) Are you sure this is the correct approach that you are taking? They might respond better to a gentler treatment.

73. Some time ago, a friend persuaded you to employ his son in the personnel department of the firm of which you are a director. Within a short time you began to regret having done so, for the young man had turned out to be lazy and unprincipled. You express your regrets to a colleague, saying:

- A) Oh well, we can send him to another department if that's what you want.
- B) I'm glad I was able to help a friend in this way.
- C) If I had known then what he was like, I would never have taken him on.
- D) I expect he'll resign as soon as his contract expires.
- E) I don't suppose any of the other candidates would have been any better.

74. A friend of yours, who is the manager of a company, tells you that he has dismissed one of his employees, an engineer, for immoral conduct in the workplace. He further informs you that he has received several threatening telephone calls from this same person. Your friend is very upset and comes to you for advice. You feel firm action must be taken. So you say:

- A) Next time he calls, just tell him politely that you are upset by his calls.
- B) If he calls again, tell him you are going to take legal action. And do so!
- C) If I were you, I would ignore the whole matter.
- D) As far as I understand it, you seem to be in for a lot of trouble.
- E) As a matter of fact, telephone calls of this kind don't need to be taken seriously.

75. As an eminent scholar you've been invited to give a series of lectures in South America. Since recently you find you get tired easily, you feel the journey would be very exhausting for you; so, you decline the invitation, giving your reason at the same time. You say:

- A) I'm afraid I cannot accept your kind invitation because, for a person of my age, the journey would prove too tiring.
- B) I have to turn down the invitation since I understand it is unsafe to travel in your country.
- C) Thank you for the invitation but I no longer accept invitations that involve much travelling as I cannot afford the time.
- D) I would like to accept your invitation, but tell me first how much travelling is involved.
- E) Though I fear the journey will be rather tiring for me, I will look forward to visiting South America.

76. You learn that a close colleague of yours in the Economics Department has been nominated for the Nobel Prize in economics. You feel thrilled for him and call him immediately to congratulate him. He tells you that he doesn't expect to receive the prize because there will, almost certainly, be other candidates better than him. Thereupon, to encourage him, you say:

- A) You are probably right. You'll just have to wait and see how it turns out.
- B) True. And after all one never knows how much the issue is affected by politics.
- C) If I were you, I'd not raise my hopes too high.
- D) Surely you are one of the leading economists in the world and have as much chance as any one else.
- E) You should feel pleased that at least you've been nominated.

77. Interviewer: Did you get the overwhelming support of the women in your constituency?

Newly-Elected Woman Representative: _____

Interviewer: How do you account for that?

Newly-Elected Woman Representative: I suppose the issues I talked about were not of primary concern to them.

- A) Probably. There are more women than men in the constituency.
- B) I really have no idea.
- C) Yes, I suppose so. But the men voted, too.
- D) Yes, and I have already thanked them.
- E) No, I don't think I did.

78. Brian: Have the police asked for your version of the story yet?

Peter: No, not yet. But they did say I should try to avoid discussing the matter.

Brian: _____

Peter: Did they really? It all seems extremely serious.

- A) They've been saying that to everyone, but to no effect.
- B) Well, we do try not to. But it's on everyone's mind.
- C) They told me the same thing.
- D) I gave my version yesterday. But they didn't seem interested.
- E) But that's not easy as they very well know.

81. Andrew: How was your holiday in Budapest? Did you find it expensive?

Rogar: _____

Andrew: Really? I didn't realise you'd even been there before.

Rogar: Oh yes. I was stationed there for nearly five years. I only left in 1993.

- A) It's a most interesting city. You really should see it for yourself.
- B) I suppose it was. But I was there on business, so it was all on the firm.
- C) I was much too busy to do any shopping.
- D) There were some beautiful hand-made articles that you could buy very cheaply.
- E) No. But I know the city well, so I can manage cheaply.

82. Edward: I hear Jane has had another novel published. Have you read any of the reviews?

Barry: No. And frankly I'm not very interested in her any longer.

Edward: _____

Barry: That was true five or six years ago, but not any longer.

- A) I overheard Whitten saying this is her best novel ever.
- B) Why is that? I thought she was generally regarded as quite the most gifted of our younger novelists.
- C) Actually I was planning to include her in my thesis.
- D) Is her work really as erudite as so many of your reviews suggest?
- E) Would you agree that her early work is largely autobiographical but that she is now using more abstract themes.

83-85 soruları, aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Eliminating poverty is largely a matter of helping children born into poverty to rise out of it. Once families escape from poverty they do not fall back into it. Middle-class children rarely end up poor. The primary reason poor children do not escape from poverty is that they do not acquire basic mental skills. They cannot read, write, calculate or articulate. Lacking these skills, they cannot get or keep a well-paid job. The best mechanism for breaking this vicious circle is to provide the poor with better educational opportunities. Since children born into poor homes do not acquire the skills they need from their parents, they must be taught these skills in school.

83. The writer makes the point that, once people have overcome poverty, _____

- A) the skills of reading and writing cease to be important for them.
- B) they cease to mix socially with the poor.
- C) they soon learn to adopt middle-class manners and ways.
- D) it is most unlikely that they will ever become poor again.
- E) they become eligible for well-paid employment in industry.

84. According to the writer, if poverty is to be overcome, _____

- A) the only effective means for this would be to provide better education.
- B) more well-paid jobs should be offered to the poor.
- C) all children, regardless of their social class, should receive the same formal education.
- D) middle-class children should be given better educational opportunities.
- E) the education of children should be based on mental skills alone.

85. The main argument of the passage is that _____

- A) the elimination of poverty can only be achieved if the poor and the rich attend the same school.
- B) middle-class children do not need to learn basic mental skills at school, since they learn them at home.
- C) the children of the poor must learn basic mental skills at school so that they can escape from poverty.
- D) Since basic mental skills are not being taught efficiently at schools, educational reform is essential.
- E) a child born into a poor family will inevitably stay poor all through his life.

86-88 soruları, aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Not just in substance but in manner too, Robin Trevelyan, who is the Prime Minister's new righthand man, is a politician in the old style. He avoids the flourish which characterises modern politicians. His speeches are at best unemotional, at worst dull. He is all but incapable of inspiring an audience. His face is inexpressive, solid almost. He evades making promises and is completely lacking in vision. He is a politician whose talent has never been to inspire the mob.

86. We can understand from the passage that Robin Trevelyan _____

- A) cannot keep his real feelings from the public eye.
- B) has, with his speech, always been able to sway public feeling.
- C) is, with his dramatic speeches, a typical politician of our time.
- D) is trusted and valued by the prime minister.
- E) is one of those rare politicians who really understands the psychology of the people.

87. With regard to the Prime Minister's new righthand man, it is pointed out in the passage that one of his shortcomings as a politician is _____

- A) his lack of any genuine belief in his own party.
- B) his inability to follow someone else's lead.
- C) his reluctance to commit himself or articulate a vision.
- D) his tendency to scorn public opinion.
- E) his fondness for modern political manners.

88. In this passage, the writer has set out to _____

- A) highlight the rare political qualities of the present Prime Minister.
- B) criticise modern British politics in the person of the Prime Minister.
- C) portray the ideal type of a politician in our time.
- D) account for the failure of the Prime Minister's previous adviser
- E) present a concise study of the political personality of the Prime Minister's new adviser.

89-91 soruları, aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Work is central in British culture. When someone asks one 'What do you do?', they really mean 'What work do you do?'. When a woman is asked 'Do you work?', what is meant is 'Are you doing a paid job?'. Yet many people without a paid job work at other kinds of productive activities. Women, notably, perform an unpaid 'double shift' in the home as housekeepers and mothers. To confine the term 'work' to paid employment, therefore, restricts it far too narrowly. There are many other kinds of work, some of which can take more time and energy than we put into our paid employment from the voluntary working in the garden to repairs to the house or the car. In other cultures, work is not as highly valued as this; some people value leisure more, and work only as much as they need in order to provide basic necessities.

89. The writer suggests that people tend to regard the word 'work' as ____

- A) referring only to paid employment.
- B) being limited only to voluntary work.
- C) relating only to physical effort.
- D) interchangeable with "leisure".
- E) an activity with an end-product.

90. The writer points out that, unlike the case in Britain, in some cultures ____

- A) work in any form is highly respected.
- B) unpaid activities such as housework make up virtually the whole of a woman's day.
- C) voluntary work is held in high respect.
- D) it is leisure, not work, that is of primary importance.
- E) people are unwilling to work to meet even their basic necessities.

91. According to the passage, unpaid jobs ____

- A) are invariably more pleasurable than paid ones.
- B) can be quite as time-consuming as paid ones.
- C) are always assigned to women rather than to men.
- D) are not readily available in Britain.
- E) are rarely taken on by people who go out to work.

92-94 soruları, aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

Alcohol, nicotine and caffeine are psychoactive drugs that are freely available in our society. Their wide spread use shows that they provide a common solution to the problems of vast numbers of individuals. The extent and the nature of their use is not, however, uniform but varies with the particular sub-culture involved. To take alcohol, for example, there are wide differences between the drinking habits and rituals of merchant, seamen and businessmen, between Italians and Jews. Each sub-group in society will have a conception of what the permissible and desirable effects of alcohol are, how much it is necessary to drink to achieve this desired state; what is normal and what is deviant drinking behaviour.

92. It is pointed out in the passage that psychoactive drugs such as alcohol, nicotine and caffeine are widely used because ____

- A) sub-groups in society identify themselves with them.
- B) people with problems find them helpful
- C) their effects have been proved to be harmless
- D) they are much cheaper than many other drugs and legally obtainable
- E) society at large regards them as harmful

93. According to the author, the consumption of alcohol in the world ____

- A) is particularly widespread among members of sub-cultures
- B) is directly related to the economic prosperity of each sub-group
- C) varies from race to race, culture to culture and class to class
- D) is closely linked with the increase of deviant drinking behaviour
- E) made the practices and behaviour of sub-cultures in society more uniform

94. The writer points out that there is little agreement among sub-groups ____

- A) about the extent to which psychoactive drugs should be produced
- B) about the benefits of psychoactive drugs
- C) as regards why businessman drink so much
- D) as to why Italians and Jews have different drinking habits
- E) as to how much alcohol can be properly consumed

95-97 soruları, aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

In the early 1970s, there was a great deal of optimism about improving women's position, ending male privilege and doing away with gender divisions and even gender difference. Equal opportunities legislation was enacted in many countries, and the voice of the women's movement was heard criticising discrimination between the sexes in every sphere of working life. Now it is clear that legislation can make only a marginal difference to entrenched patterns of job segregation and inequality. The voices of feminism, too, are varied; some demand equality with men while others pursue the revaluation of women's skills and 'womanly' virtues.

95. It is pointed out in the passage that many people in the early 1970s ____ .

- A) realised that a majority of women were not genuinely interested in job segregation
- B) were doubtful as to whether legislation could improve the position of women in society
- C) actively took part in women's demonstrations against male aggression and dominance in the workplace
- D) confidently expected the elimination of the inequality existing between the sexes
- E) were scarcely aware of there being any discrimination between the sexes

96. According to the author, legislation against gender discrimination ____

- A) has contributed surprisingly little towards the improvement of women's position in society
- B) has been grossly neglected especially in less prosperous countries
- C) has, in many countries, already made the position of women fully equal to that of men
- D) has brought about balance in society that satisfies the women's movement everywhere
- E) has been fully successful in eradicating job segregation in industrial countries

97. According to the passage, there are people in the feminist movement who ____ .

- A) argue that women don't deserve equal opportunities with men in working life
- B) believe that women's qualities have been undervalued and should be reassessed
- C) are convinced that women would have a stronger position if they kept their femininity
- D) believe that the movement is far from achieving any of its original objectives
- E) are concerned that the legislation against sex discrimination in working life may be revoked in the near future

98-100 soruları, aşağıdaki parçaya göre cevaplayınız.

All of us are born, all of us will die; but there is infinite variety in the nature and circumstances of these two events themselves and in what happens to our bodies and our minds in between. Some individuals, for example, are born without difficulty and grow uninterruptedly during childhood and adolescence, suffering at worst only minor infectious diseases and accidents. As adults, they reproduce their kind. They age gradually until, in extreme old age, they die peacefully without pain or discomfort. This is an idealised picture of how we would like things to be, rather than the reality that most people experience. Death comes to many of us, not when we are old, but during or before birth, in infancy, in adolescence, in early adulthood or in middle age.

98. One point made by the author in this passage is that we, as human beings, ____ .

- A) must face the fact that accidents in old age are inevitable
- B) have all similar opportunities but use them differently
- C) all enjoy a happy childhood and a healthy adolescence
- D) ought to take certain measures to avoid infectious diseases in childhood
- E) have widely differing experiences of birth, life and death

99. The writer points out that, though most people expect life to be free of care and death easy, ____ .

- A) this is not likely to happen either in adolescence or in adulthood
- B) they have to strive hard to attain this idealised condition
- C) this is, in fact, very rarely the case
- D) for many people a worthwhile life has more to it than this
- E) this is seldom the case except in old age

100. In this passage the writer points out the disparity between ____ .

- A) the basically fortunate lives of the majority and the tragic experience of a small minority
- B) what everyone expects of life and what he actually achieves in life
- C) the early happy years of our lives, and the later tragic ones
- D) the near ideal life experience of the few and the actual life experience of the majority
- E) the happier middle years of a person's life and the more trying later years
